and help bring Young Stars to Light

The T Tauri Film Festival and Movie Camp was created in 2005 and takes place in the small Ozark foothills community of Batesville, Arkansas. The goals of the annual event, and other year-round initiatives conducted under the T Tauri banner, are to use the process of digital filmmaking to encourage and facilitate technological proficiency, creativity and self-expression, and collaboration and community engagement among rural youth.

The 2007 (3rd annual) T Tauri Film Festival Young Filmmakers Competition received over 100 entries from young filmmakers all over the country, some working with schools or established youth media organizations and some working entirely on their own. Thirteen of the best entries are included on this compilation DVD. The works are strikingly varied and include narrative, documentary, experimental, music video, and animated films. The T Tauri Film Festival and Movie Camp is honored to present this accomplished, thought-provoking, and tremendously creative body of work and thank the participating artists and organizations for their commitment and generosity.
